

True Sight by enjolasstaire

Category: Stranger Things (TV 2016)

Genre: Gen, Mike Wheeler is a good friend, Will Byers Has Glasses, Will Byers Has Issues, You can't convince me otherwise

Language: English

Characters: Dustin Henderson, Mike Wheeler, The Party (Stranger Things), Will Byers

Relationships: Will Byers & Mike Wheeler, Will Byers & The Party

Status: Completed

Published: 2021-06-03

Updated: 2021-06-03

Packaged: 2022-03-31 15:01:14

Rating: General Audiences

Warnings: No Archive Warnings Apply

Chapters: 1

Words: 464

Publisher: archiveofourown.org

Summary:

When Will has trouble reading his textbook, Mr. Clark suggests he may need glasses.

True Sight

Author's Note:

Not connected to any series, but this is a short little oneshot because I love the idea of Will having glasses!

Will was quiet for the rest of the school day. After they had science, and Mr. Clark gave him a note suggesting he get a pair of glasses.

Truth be told he could tell his eye sight getting worse ever since the Upside Down. Then he was possessed, which is when he noticed it going downhill. It started when he had trouble reading his character sheet for D&D, then shit hit the fan when he was asked to read a page of the textbook in science, and held it as close to his eyes as he could.

How was he supposed to have true sight if he couldn't even read his textbook?

It was the end of the day and Mike walked up to him when he was at his locker. "Hey, are you okay? You've been weird ever since Clark gave you that note in science. Is it?"

Will shook his head. "No, no. it's no-it's not that. It's um- He thinks I might need glasses,"

Will heard Mike let out a sigh of relief. "Are you having trouble reading?"

Will's cheeks reddened. "A little,"

"Then that's a good thing! You can't walk around unable to see!" Mike told him, trying to make Will feel better.

"Yeah, but glasses cost money and so do eye appointments. It's not that simple, Mike. She can't know about this. I've already caused her so much trouble and-and if I tell her this, it's just going to make paying for everything harder," He reminded Mike.

Not all of them could afford glasses as they please.

Mike didn't look convinced. He needed Will to know his eye sight wasn't something to mess with. "But you know your mom would kill you for hiding something like this. You know that she and Jonathan would find a way to make it work. She has to know about this. It's not your fault, Will,"

Will hummed in response. It was true. No matter how hard it would be, he knew Joyce would do whatever she could to keep Will happy and healthy. And that meant getting him glasses.

"Alright, alright. I'll let her know," He said, as they walked out of the middle school.

The next time the Party hung out Will arrived with a pair of thick rimmed tortoise shell glasses. He tried to keep his head down and not draw attention to himself. He was already weird, and on top of that the added glasses didn't help.

"Byers!" Mike screamed as Will made his way into the basement. "You got them!"

Will nodded. "Yeah, I got them yesterday. They help a lot," He finally admitted.

"Hey, guess what?" Dustin asked, as everyone looked at them. "You'll actually have true sight now!" He joked, as everyone rolled their eyes.